- Students take at least 12 hours in the fall semester of their first year. Nine hours will come from MEJO 701, MEJO 740 and MEJO 705. Students take 12 hours in the spring semester of the first year and 12 hours in the fall semester of their second year.
- Students take thesis hours in the spring semester of the second year (this includes taking path exams and defending their theses). Only three hours of thesis credit may be counted in the total needed for graduation.
- The minimum number of hours needed to graduate with an M.A. from the School of Journalism and Communication in the Mass Communication Track is 39 hours, which all must be at the graduate level. The three credit hours for the thesis (MEJO 993) count in this 39-hour total.
- Effective Fall 2015, each research track M.A. student should enroll in an independent study with their thesis chair in the second fall semester to work on the literature review for their thesis proposal.
- Students must be enrolled to take path exams and to defend their theses. In addition, if a student does not defend the thesis in the fourth semester, the student must enroll for three hours of academic credit each semester they are actively working on their theses. Actively working means that a student is using University facilities, including the library, and working with a faculty member.
